A Message from the Executive Co-Directors

Leadership and learning are indispensable to each other

John F. Kennedy

The Midwest Principals Center is committed to supporting school principals and other educational leaders. We do this by enriching their leadership, affiliation and knowledge. The program of professional development presented for the 2018-2019 school year includes some of the most recognized and requested presenters in our profession addressing topics chosen by our membership. As you review the 2018-19 offerings, please remember that MPC is an approved Illinois Prof Dev Provider, CEU Provider and CPS Vendor # 67619. All events are aligned to the IL Prof Leader Standards and the Danielson Framework for Teaching. This alignment is in place for the benefit of yourself and your district when choosing quality learning activities.

Welcome to our new Co-Director Denise Welter!

The search for a new co-director began in January when LuAnn Kelly submitted her resignation effective May 31st. Denise retired in 2017 after 24 years as principal in McHenry School District 15 and Wilmette District 39. Denise has been on the MPC Governing Board for 24 years, with 15 of those years as President of the organization. Denise is a compassionate, people-centered professional who is emotionally invested in MPC. She has a deep understanding and history of MPC. She is committed to working as a team to promote MPC to support principals and other educational leaders. Denise also understands the professional development needs of today's principals. We believe she will be a great addition to MPC! Denise will begin her position as Co-Director on June 1st. We wish LuAnn our best as she plans to spend more time with her family, at her cabin, and traveling.

MPC is moving June 1, 2018!

After June 1, 2018

The MPC office will be moving its office to:
2815 Forbs Avenue Suite 107
Hoffman Estates, IL 60192

Our new phone numbers will be:

847-851-2256 and 847-851-2101 fax

Our emails will also change to:

lhyde@midwestprincipalscenter.org
dwelter@midwestprincipalscenter.org
tcurcio@midwestprincipalscenter.org

MPC strives to support districts in meeting professional development needs in meaningful and economical ways while maintaining fiscal responsibility

Although MPC has taken strong measures to be efficient with its resources, its organizational costs (speaker fees, website and technology costs) have risen over the years. To offset these costs, MPC has slightly raised its registration fees. This is the first increase in membership fees in five years. MPC's registration fee is still considered to be well worth its value.

The 2017-18 MPC Annual Report is posted on our MPC website. Some highlights include:

- 1) Planned and implemented a rigorous schedule for 2017-2018
- 2) MPC had over 1,000 registrations to attend MPC events which exceeded budget projections
- 3) Increased marketing, branding and use of social media
- 4) Improved MPC website and registration system
- 5) Successfully formed partnerships and collaborated with multiple professional organizations
- 6) MPC is now an Illinois recognized provider for professional development hours including becoming a CPS Vendor

MPC wants to recognize and thank its Governing Board members.

MPC provides an outstanding professional development program due to the leadership, knowledge and expertise of these board members. Their support of MPC is evident by meeting and event attendance, networking and program feedback received all year. (Each Partner District is allowed one seat on the Governing Board. Governing Board members attend all MPC events at no cost! Contact MPC office for more information.)

Midwest Principals' Center continues to have a strong membership year after year. The quality of our membership reflects the quality of our organization. Thank you to all our members. Please contact us throughout the year with your thoughts and ideas.

Best Regards,

LuAnn Kelly, Larry Hyde and Denise Welter
Executive Co-Directors
Midwest Principals' Center

A workshop for Admin Assistants and Office Staff

MPC/IL ASCD Co-Sponsored Event

Justin Baeder is Director of The Principal Center and the High-Performance Instructional Leadership Network. Justin spent the first love in 10 years of his career as a teacher and principal in Seattle Public Schools. Since 2012, he has served as a full-time consultant and director of The Principal Center, speaking at national conventions such as NAESP and ASCD to help school leaders become more productive by using high-performance strategies and technology to increase their impact on student learning. He writes new articles each week on productivity for school administrators at Edleadership.org.

In this one-day workshop for school office staff and admin assistants, you'll develop systems to reduce interruptions and stress, while getting more done in less time.

You'll Learn:

- Strategies for minimizing interruptions from parents and staff, so you can focus on your core work - even if you're "it" in the front office
- A proven process for turning your top frustrations into fine-tuned systems that get more done without your involvement
- How to eliminate duplicated work and manual data entry for attendance, payments and other parent/student issues you encounter every day
- Key tools for empowering staff to get the information they need, without always asking you
- Tech tools for working with student data, staff requests, shared calendars and communication

Agenda:

AM:

- Creating a "Wow" customer service experience for everyone who calls or visits your school
- Identifying your biggest frustration and time-wasting interruptions
- High-Performance Workflow: how to build systems to get work done without you

PM:

- Systems for self-service support:empowering teachers and other staff to help themselves - your way
- Tech tools to consider for your office team
- Better coordination with less communication: systems for seamlessly sharing information How your school can develop a reputation in your community for outstanding customer service - even if you're understaffed

Yong Zhao is a Foundation Distinguished Professor in the School of Education at the University of Kansas. He is also a professorial fellow at the Mitchell Institute for Health and Education Policy, Victoria University in Australia. He previously served as the Presidential Chair and Director of the Institute for Global and Online Education in the College of Education, University of Oregon, where he was also a Professor in the Department of Educational Measurement, Policy, and Leadership. Prior joining Oregon, Yong Zhao was University Distinguished Professor at the College of Education, Michigan State University, where he also served as the founding director of the Center for Teaching and Technology, executive director of the Confucius Institute, as well as the US-China Center for Research on Educational Excellence.

Prepare your students for the globalized world!

In the new global economy, the jobs that exist now might not exist by the time today's students enter the workplace. To succeed in this ever-changing world, students need to be able to think like entrepreneurs: resourceful, flexible, creative, and global. Researcher and Professor Yong Zhao unlocks the secrets to cultivating independent thinkers who are willing and able to use their learning differently to create jobs and contribute positively to the globalized society. World Class Learners presents concepts that teachers, administrators and even parents can implement immediately, including how to:

- Understand the entrepreneurial spirit and harness it
- Foster student autonomy and leadership
- Champion inventive learners with necessary resources
- Develop global partners and resources With the liberty to make meaningful decisions and explore nontraditional learning opportunities, today's students will develop into tomorrow's global entrepreneur

Domains: 2, 4

October 23, 2018

*Participants of this event may want to consider also registering for "Becoming a Restorative School Community" by Beverly Manigo on April 30, 2019 (pg.15)

Hector Montenegro has been a math teacher, principal, chief of staff for the Washington, DC Public Schools, area superintendent, deputy superintendent for the Dallas ISD, and superintendent of schools for three school districts in Texas. He is an internationally recognized speaker and presenter with hundreds of workshop presentations, leadership development seminars, and keynote speeches at conferences, universities, schools, businesses, and special events in the US and 22 other countries. He worked most recently in Brazil, Chile, and Peru as a special consultant on education reform with the US embassy.

Dr. Montenegro specializes in multicultural and multilingual education, curriculum designs, interactive pedagogy, technology integration, effective instructional strategies for ELLs and leadership coaching and development. He works directly with administrators, faculty and staff in developing leadership skills to establish structures that promote student success and support collaborative cultures that empower faculty and staff.

This presentation will increase awareness of Restorative Practices (RP) and Social Emotional Learning (SEL), explore strategies for effective implementation and build leadership capacity to sustain RP and SEL over time.

Presentation Objectives:

- 1) To reflect on current understanding and practices of RP, SEL, culturally responsive teaching and addressing the needs of English Learners
- 2) To review current research and trends of RP, SEL, culturally responsive teaching and systemic implementation of reform initiatives.
- 3) To engage participants in RP and SEL strategies that would build capacity to provide leadership, coaching and support to redefine efforts to address issues of culture and climate in a changing school environment.

The Mindset Revolution: Teaching Mathematics for a Growth Mindset

Jo Boaler & Cathy Williams
Standards for Prof. Learn: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
Domains: 1, 3

November 9, 2018

Jo Boaler is a Professor of Mathematics Education at Stanford University, and the faculty director of youcubed. She is the author of the first MOOC on mathematics teaching and learning. Former roles have included being the Marie Curie Professor of Mathematics Education for Europe, a mathematics teacher in London comprehensive schools and a researcher at King's College, London. She is the author of nine books – including the best seller: Mathematical Mindsets - and she has received numerous awards for mathematics equity and leadership.

Cathy Williams Is the Co-Founder and the Executive Director of youcubed. Previously Cathy served as the Director of K-12 Mathematics in the Vista Unified School District where her professional development series earned a California State Golden Bell Award. Cathy's former roles have included a high school mathematics teacher, AVID coordinator, and mathematics department chair and district curriculum leader over an 18-year span before she became a curriculum and instruction administrator in 2003. Cathy served for seven years as the San Diego County Office of Education K-12 Mathematics Coordinator where her key projects included developing the book and professional development program, Math Language that Works and the online math teacher support program Getting Ready for Algebra.

In recent years scientific studies have demonstrated that student and teacher 'mindsets' have a profound impact on learning. Students with a 'growth mindset' (Dweck, 2006) who believe that intelligence can be learned and that the brain can grow from exercise learn more effectively, displaying a desire for challenge and showing resilience in the face of failure. Such behaviors encourage greater maths persistence, engagement and high achievement. It is critically important that both teachers and students have growth mindsets and we will work together in this session to encourage both. Recent brain science research gives a clear direction for mathematics learning. Jo and Cathy will present some of the most important research and think about what it means for learners, and teachers.

During this workshop we will consider together what it means to have and to teach for a growth mindset. We will consider what mathematics really is, and what is mathematically important for students, across all grade levels. We will look together at brain research, at different mathematics tasks, grouping arrangements, encouragement and praise, and many other aspects of mathematics teaching. We will do this through classroom videos and through working on maths tasks together.

Newseum - Coping with Fake News and Teaching Media Literacy

Newseum Staff
Standards for Prof. Learn:
Domains: 2, 3, 4

December 3, 2018

Newseum's mission, located in Washington, D.C., is to increase public understanding of the importance of a free press and the First Amendment. Visitors experience the story of news, the role of a free press in major events in history, and how the core freedoms of the First Amendment — religion, speech, press, assembly and petition — apply to their lives. Considered one of the most interactive museums in the world, the Newseum has seven levels with 15 galleries and 15 theaters.

This workshop includes 4 sessions:

1) Media Ethics for Educators

The press may be free, but is it a free-for-all? Is it ever OK to clean up a quote or digitally manipulate a photograph? This professional development workshop teaches educators the key principles of ethical journalism. Using real-life case studies, participants debate how to apply these standards, experiencing the decision-making process that goes on behind-the-scenes in journalism. They receive tools and strategies that will allow them to take these topics back to their students, helping them become more informed media consumers.

2) Fighting Fake News

In "Fighting Fake News: How to Help Your Students Outsmart Trolls and Troublemakers," teachers will learn a practical approach to helping students avoid one of the major pitfalls of today's digital media: falling for fake information. They'll examine real-life case studies that bring to life the challenges of today's media landscape and model an easy-to-remember and easy-to-implement strategy for staying a step ahead. Throughout the session, discussion and activities will explore best practices for meeting their student's need for enhanced media savvy in the academic realm and their daily lives.

3) Judging Fact, Fiction and Everything In-Between: Teaching Media Literacy

Is Wikipedia reliable? How do you distinguish fact from rumor? What news source is trustworthy? From social media posts to "citizen journalist" reports to traditional news media, today's students face questions about the origins, reliability and attribution of information everywhere they turn. As digital natives who've been online their whole lives, they have a unique perspective on these issues, but they still need guidance to ask the right questions and find the answers. This broad introduction to media literacy provides a set of easy-to-use tools teachers can share with their students to deconstruct the information they encounter online, in print, on social media or on TV. Participants will model specific strategies and resources they can bring to their classroom to foster increased media literacy across subject matters, with special attention to developing research skills.

4) Teaching Controversy: Turning Third-Rail Topics into Productive Debates

In today's world, there seems to be an endless list of issues that have a vital impact on our lives, but also the potential to derail a class session due to inappropriate content or divisive ideas. As First Amendment educators, the NewseumED team has spent years developing tools and techniques for turning this topics countless flashpoints and controversies – from racism and obscenity to threats of violence – into teachable moments. In this session, participants will learn the preparation and discussion methods that have allowed NewseumED to build a successful practice of teaching controversy. They'll leave with a deeper understanding of resources available to them and the tools they need to confidently develop their own student materials and experiences.

Writing Strategies and Beyond: Leading the Work

Jennifer Serravallo
Standards for Prof. Learn: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
Domains: 1, 3

January 24, 2019

Jennifer Serravallo was a teacher in Title 1 Schools in NYC, and later a Senior Staff Developer at the Teachers College Reading and Writing Project at Columbia University. She is now a national consultant and speaker who helps urban, suburban, and rural schools implement exceptional literacy instruction. She is the author of numerous books on the teaching of reading and writing including the New York Times bestseller, The Reading Strategies Book and the two-time award-winning Independent Reading Assessment Series. Her latest book, The Writing Strategies Book, was released in February 2017. Check out her blog at www.jenniferserravallo.com and tweet her @jserravallo.

Drawing on Serravallo's The Writing Strategies Book, this seminar will help participants to understand a variety of writing genres and modes, writing process, behaviors, skills, and qualities of good writing.

Then, participants learn how to go beyond writing checklists and tips that tell writers what to do, and instead learn how to craft explicit, clear strategies that show children how to do it. We will also explore effective feedback and prompts to coach writers as they practice strategies for their goals.

Participants will learn about different methods of teaching (types of individual conferences and small groups) to flexibly respond to students and their needs. Through hands-on activities and video examples of Jen teaching in real classrooms, participants will leave equipped to bring strategies to life in their own rooms right away.

Course Goals:

- To understand how to use formative assessment information to find appropriate goals for each writer
- To craft explicit, clear strategies
- To coach and prompt writers, and provide feedback as students practice strategies

During the last hour, Kathy Bruni, a Language Arts Specialist whose educational background encompasses over forty years of teaching and serving in literacy leadership roles and consultant/trainer for the DuPage Regional Office of Education's Literacy Team will facilitate table discussions and developing action plans at the close of Jennifer's presentation.

Fostering a Trauma Sensitive Learning Environment: A Team Approach

Kristin Souers
Administrators' Academy # 1374 Pending
Standards for Prof. Learn: 2, 4, 5
Domains: 2, 4

February 21, 2019

Kristin Souers has dedicated herself to the improvement of people's lives for over two decades. As a licensed mental health counselor, she has provided counseling services to individuals, couples, and families. This, partnered with her expertise in complex trauma, the impact of violence, crisis management, counseling, and trauma-informed care, has allowed her to partner with professionals around the development of trauma-informed practices in a multitude of settings.

As an independent consultant, adjunct faculty member at the Gonzaga University School of Education in the Counselor Education Department, Kristin now provides critical professional development, consultation, education, and training services to schools, school districts, and organizations throughout the country. The award winning publication, Fostering Resilient Learners: Strategies for Creating a Trauma-Sensitive Classroom Environment (ASCD, 2016) and many articles published in education journals, her most recent "Responding with Care to Students Facing Trauma." (December 2017/January 2018) have strengthened Kristin's impact in education.

Childhood trauma is real, it is prevalent, and it impacts students, their learning, and the adults in their lives quite significantly. In this engaging, relevant, and practical session, learn from childhood trauma expert Kristin Souers about the importance of trauma informed practices in the school setting. Participants will be introduced to and provided with opportunities to explore more in-depth the importance of fostering a culture of safety, predictability, and consistency; what it truly means to work as a team and address our students collectively; discuss a handful of strategies to support the New Three R's (Relationship, Responsibility, and Regulation); and how to sustain a healthy work-life balance.

Attendees will explore their roles as leaders and gain strategies for both student and adult support. Attendees will be given opportunities to collaborate and problem-solve scenarios associated with fostering a trauma sensitive environment.

MPC/IL ASCD Co-Sponsored Event

Outcomes:

1. Participants will deepen their understanding as leaders of the value of fostering a safe, predictable, and consistent learning environment
2. Participants will explore multiple strategies for education staff and community members to utilize with adults and children with (known and unknown) trauma histories – helping to sustain learning-ready states
3. Participants will collaborate to identify ways to support a team approach to addressing students' needs in a strength based way
4. Participants will reflect on the importance of a healthy work-life balance and its value in fostering and sustaining a trauma sensitive environment

MPC EdCamp for Leaders

Eligible for Illinois Professional Development and CEU Credit

March 9, 2019

Midwest Principals' Center will be hosting its annual EdCamp for District and School Administrators and Teacher Leaders on Saturday, March 9, 2019 at Maine East High School in Park Ridge.

An Ed Camp is an "unconference" where you help set the agenda. Have a topic that you would like to discuss with other school leaders? Looking for feedback on an idea you would like to implement at your school? Wondering how other districts and schools are handling the latest "hot topics" in education? This is the place and forum for you! Simply come ready to lead or participate in a professional conversation with your colleagues in a relaxed, casual setting. This is an Ed Camp designed for school leaders and aspiring leaders.

If you are interested in leading or facilitating conversations on a hot topic, just stop by the welcoming table and write your name and topic on a post-it note. You will be placed on the Ed Camp Schedule and be assigned a room number and time slot.

The Ed Camp will begin with a general welcome assembly that will include some introductions and thank-you's, provide basic information about an Ed Camp, and include schedule/directions. Everyone will have the opportunity to choose to participate from several topics during each period. Finally, there will be a closing assembly to share and provide feedback. Stay for your chance to receive free give-aways!

Diane Sweeney is the author of the bestselling books, Student-Centered Coaching: The Moves (Corwin, 2016), Student-Centered Coaching: A Guide for K-8 Coaches and Principals (Corwin, 2011) and Student-Centered Coaching at the Secondary Level (Corwin, 2013). All three books are grounded in the simple but powerful premise that coaching can be designed to more directly impact student learning. Her first book, Learning Along the Way (Stenhouse, 2003) shares the story of how an urban elementary school transformed itself to become a learning community. Diane spends her time speaking and consulting for schools and educational organizations across the country. She is also an instructor for the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Student-Centered Coaching puts students' learning front-and-center. It is an evidence-based instructional coaching model that shifts the focus from 'fixing' teachers to collaborating with them to design instruction that targets student outcomes. This session will introduce Diane's latest book, Leading Student-Centered Coaching. It will focus on a concrete set of strategies for principals who want to get more out of a coaching effort.

In many districts, there is a lack of support to principals regarding how to lead a coaching effort. This may be due to the simple fact that we haven't paid much attention to guiding principals through the rapid expansion of instructional coaching. Another reason may be the fact that schools are complex and difficult places to enact change. For this reason, we believe that simple, and easy to use strategies for leading a coaching effort are long overdue.

We welcome principals, district leaders, and K-12 coaches of any specialization (instructional, literacy, math, technology) to attend this session. It is particularly well suited for school teams to attend together.

Session Outcomes:

- Learn the philosophy and core practices for student-centered coaching
- Learn concrete strategies for leading a coaching effort
- Understand how to measure the impact of coaching on teaching and learning
- Align these practices to your plan for school improvement

Becoming a Restorative School Community

Beverly Manigo
Administrators' Academy # 1778
Standards for Prof. Learn: 2, 4, 5
Domains: 2, 4

April 30, 2019

Beverly Manigo is a distinguished educator; she has previously served as an elementary and middle school principal in the Baltimore City Schools System, where she also served as the coordinator of all K-8 Charter Schools. Prior to these assignments, Mrs. Manigo was the founding principal of an elementary alternative school in Richland School District Two in Columbia, SC. Mrs. Manigo has faithfully served principals and teachers, training and supporting them in creating school environments that are conducive to effective teaching and learning. She is an international trainer and consultant, a certified teacher, principal and superintendent by the state of South Carolina. Mrs. Manigo is a retired Master Sergeant from the United States Army and served this country for 22 years as an Administrator.

Building Relationships... Resolving Conflicts

The aim of restorative practice is to develop community and to manage conflict and tensions by repairing harm and building relationships. School discipline is at a crossroad. Most researchers have concluded that years of punitive discipline measures have produced harmful consequences for students. Restorative practice is a strategy that seeks to repair relationships that have been damaged, including those damaged through bullying. It does this by bringing about a sense of remorse and restorative action on the part of the offender and forgiveness by the victim. A restorative school community is one who welcomes children into a safe, trusting, and nurturing environment.

This workshop will include how to:

- * Establish a Restorative Discipline School Community
- * Describe Components of Effective Behavioral Interventions
- * Establish Schoolwide Restorative Discipline Policy
- * Implement Restorative Practices and In-School Suspension System
- * Evaluate Professional Development Issues for Staff
- * Sustainability and Continuous Improvement

*Participants of this event may want to consider also registering for "Building Restorative Culture Around a Socially and Emotionally Supportive Environment" by Hector Montenegro on April 30, 2019 (pg.8)

The day will include discussion around:

- * Foundations of Restorative Practices
- * Key Characteristics of a Restorative School
- * Importance of School Climate
- * Restorative Practices as Prevention and Intervention
- * Restorative School Discipline Planning Steps
- * Being Specific with School-Wide Behavioral Expectations
- * Developing your School's Behavior Expectations

Emerging Leaders Academy

Developing the Next Generation of School Leaders

Bill Melsheimer, is a former public school principal and private school head/superintendent with 37 years of administrative experience. He currently serves on the Midwest Principals' Center (MPC) Advisory Board and previously was a regional facilitator for MPC serving as a professional developer of principals. Bill is the former co-director for the Consortium for Educational Change C.L.A.S.S. Leadership Coaching Program that served and supported principals, assistant principals, principal interns, and district administrators. Bill was an associate and educational consultant for the administrative/executive search firm Hazard, Young, Attea & Associates (HYA).

The Emerging Leaders Academy (ELA) invites school administrators to “tap” teachers, team leaders, counselors, instructional coaches, coordinators, department chairs, and deans who want to train as the next generation of school leaders through the innovative ELA Program. This Program is designed to develop the leadership capacity of talented and potential school leaders who have a genuine interest and show promise to serve as future school administrators. This passageway will connect theory and practice so emerging school leaders can develop the necessary, critical attributes of school leadership. This Program prepares future school leaders and supports those presently in leadership positions who wish to continue to grow and develop.

Each participant will:

- Have greater clarity about your knowledge and work as an emerging school leader.
- Identify the challenges associated with your future role as a school leader.
- Develop new strategies in knowing and understanding yourself, your colleagues, your current leaders, and your school culture.
- Reach out beyond your boundaries as a future school leader.
- Develop a personal leadership vision for success.
- Create an action plan for applying the contents of the presentations in the development of your work as a future school leader.
- Connect with other aspiring school leaders in a professional learning community environment.

Legal Breakfasts

Darcy Kriha, Kriha Law LLC presents a series of conversations on the critical issues faced by school leaders.

These morning meetings will:

- Update school leaders on legal issues and new legislation that impact school leadership
- Help to prevent legal entanglements that sap time and resources from schools and districts
- Provide practical advice on handling potential and existing legal matters

Discuss and problem solve structured scenarios that relate to the practical and day to day aspects of each legal topic. Gather information, bring ideas and examples, share, learn and improve your practice by joining in the rich dialogue and diverse perspectives.
